

CELEBRATING GLOBAL DISABILITY INCLUSION AT ACCENTURE

Video Transcript

Saswat: My philosophy is of self-acceptance. I was born with a condition called osteogenesis imperfecta. It impacts the development of bones. My father used to physically carry me everywhere – right through my childhood, until my initial working days.

Himali: I developed hearing loss in utero from ototoxic drug exposure. My mother got malaria during her pregnancy. I wear a hearing aid in my left ear, but the right ear doesn't respond to sound entirely.

Saswat: It's a constant challenge to be a better version of our own selves. My journey is unique and my own. I belong to a great culture of inclusion and diversity at Accenture.

Himali: When I came to learn about the root cause of my hearing loss, I was determined to make drug products in the market safer. My job at Accenture allows me to do exactly that.
