

Safety and Privacy: They're Looking to You

WHILE JUST

52%

of employees are comfortable with the COVID-19 vaccine, they feel their organizations are dedicated to providing healthy and safe workspaces.

67%

of workers agree they have enough information about the COVID-19 vaccine.

76%

of people agree that routine cleaning and surface and equipment disinfecting are done stringently to ensure employee safety.

Are you leaning on tech to make people as safe as possible?

Organizations still face challenges in their implementation of intelligent workplace systems and touchless technology.

ONLY 56%

of workers agree that their organization has intelligent workplace systems that allow for real-time occupancy tracking, reporting and alerting (such as sensors to track space between people).

ONLY 54%

of employees agree that touchless technology is enabled at work so employees don't have to physically touch common surface areas.

Workers might trust you, but they're still uneasy.

People feel that their data privacy is being respected by their employers with regards to COVID-19-specific personal information. But they're worried about disclosing it.

of workers agree that their employer can lawfully conduct temperature checks of all employees and visitors on the premises.

of employees feel that disclosing their health status could result in embarrassment or stigmatization in the workplace.