VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

We are really proud of our partnership with Free2Move eSolutions. Together we are going to accelerate towards sustainable mobility.

Francesca Patellani - Geographic Services Lead, Italy, Central Europe and Greece Accenture

Accenture's partnership with Free2Move eSolutions, a major player in eMobility, confirms our commitment as Accenture to drive sustainability and have a role at the fore front of the mobility revolution.

Roberto Di Stefano, CEO at Free2Move eSolutions

At Free2Move eSolutions, we believe in our partnership with Accenture because we have the same mission: contribute to a more sustainable future and simplify the customer experience when dealing with charging stations or payment agreements.

Teodoro Lio:

The electric cars revolution is actually creating a new evolving ecosystem, an ecosystem at the convergence of different industries, where we have players coming from automotive to utilities, from energy to battery manufacturing. All of these actors need to work together, because we have an incredible task in front of ourselves: over the next decade we need to recreate the same infrastructure that if you think about, it took us more than a hundred year to build when it comes to refuel in combustion cars, the cars we drive today.

Francesca Patellani:

We will install charging points across Europe, starting from our offices in Italy, where we will integrate electric vehicles into the grid by adopting Free2Move eSolutions technology.

Roberto Di Stefano:

We will combine our deep experience in e-mobility with Accenture's broad capabilities in digital and sustainable services to build a technology platform that will manage charging solutions and subscriptions. Together we will develop new joint offerings that will support large companies in the transition to sustainable mobility and a new customer charging experience.

Francesca Patellani:

Our people will gradually be given access to the charging app, and they will be able to recharge on the go, at home or in our offices. This is an important step for Accenture to accelerate our commitment to a more sustainable future.

Teodoro Lio:

So this cross industry collaboration, underpinned by a digital infrastructure, is strategically important to: 1) shape the mobility revolution as we transition towards electric cars; and 2) to create the best possible experience for the customers of tomorrow

Roberto Di Stefano:

We are very excited of this partnership with Accenture, we have a lot of expectations and, clearly speaking, market is waiting for us and I cant's wait longer to start immediately to release products.
