

A PERSPECTIVE ON T+1 SETTLEMENT

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Today's technology accelerates our expectations. Everyone expects immediate answers and instant results. These same is also true for Capital Markets when it comes to security settlement. In response, the SEC has proposed to reduce the settlement timeline to T+1 by Q3 of 2024. And the Canadian Capital Markets Association has announced they intend to move in lock step with the US timelines. T+1 settlement will cover multiple US asset classes and will help institutions limit counterparty risk and optimize capital. But many firms require process, system, and technology updates to get there. And many have yet to mobilize, according to Accenture research.

Preparing early is critical in being able to coordinate efforts across your organization, address potential gaps, and test your readiness. T+1 presents an opportunity for firms to enhance their post trade processing capabilities through technology. Automation and Artificial Intelligence solutions are already prevalent in many institutions as they attempt to drive toward Straight Through Processing.

However, there is still a way to go on these fronts to help achieve T+1 settlement. Whether you need to complete a holistic impact analysis, or you already mobilized a T+1 program, Accenture is the natural partner of choice to navigate the T+1 agenda. We have first-hand experience running post-trade operations and can help you get the most out of your T+1 investment.

Through comprehensive technology assessments and top-down evaluation of operational processes, we can help identify opportunities for automation; recommend process improvements and carry you through testing and implementation.

Don't just prepare for T+1. Prepare for the future of accelerated settlements with Accenture.

Learn more:

www.accenture.com/CapitalMarkets

Copyright © 2022 Accenture
All rights reserved.

Accenture and its logo
are registered trademarks of Accenture.